

IMPORTANT NOTICE

REGARDING LUCIRA COVID-19 TEST KIT EXPIRY DATE

Thank you for your order. We want to provide you updated information about the expiration date on your Lucira COVID-19 All-In-One Test Kits.

Presently, our Lucira test kits now have a 9-month expiration. For COVID-19 tests, the FDA only allows manufacturers to label products based on real-time stability studies. As of May 17, 2021, Lucira Health has completed the real-time stability testing to support a 9-month expiration.

You will find on updated expiration date stickered on the bottom of each test carton enclosed in this shipment. The expiration date noted on the outer carton is the accurate expiration date for each test kit. If you are receiving this notice, some of the internal pouches enclosed within each test kit may have been printed with a 6-month expiry label that has now been extended an additional 3 months. The updated current expiration date for all internal test kit components is now reflected in the outer carton expiration.

Please note that we also have accelerated aging studies underway that presently show product stability at 12 months. We will be continuing our real-time stability studies until we reach an 18-month expiration on our product.
